New York Stock Market

New York, May 19.—The professional slement in the stock market defined it as "sold out" to-day, meaning that practically no stocks were offered for sale. The buying was meagre to the point of staryation, but bids had to be advanced nevertheless to secure stocks. Dealings fell to a lower level even than yesterday, reducing the record for duliness since July of 1998 correspondingly, but the facility with which prices rose changed the aspect of sluggishness and stagnation. What was rather remarkable was that the trading element took small advantage of this price movement to deal in fluctuations. The neglect was partly due to the fact that the Stock Exchange will open to-morpow not until noon, and the London Exchange not at all, in observance of the funeral day of the late King of England.

The day's small dealings were congested in a few stocks, and some special causes were assigned for the strength shown by these, which had a large sympathetic effect on the dull and narrow market. Reading was most conspicuous, and the operations in that stock were ascribed to speculative parties lately active in the Wabash and Rock Island. Claims were circulated of large concealed assets in the Reading treasury in the form of equities in securities held which are said to be undervalued in the company's balance sheet. No new facts were adduced to
